

Creative Media and Digital Culture 375

Language, Texts and Technology

Washington State University - Vancouver, spring 2011

Assignments due for: April 27, 2011

<http://ltspring2011.blogspot.com/>

[] Submit your group audio project / individual analysis (125 points)

Email your MP3 file to: brett.oppegaard@gmail.com by 9 a.m. Wednesday, April 27, so I can post those to the class blog, and we can listen to them in class that night. It's likely that your file will be too large to be transferred using regular email methods, so please use a Web site such as Dropbox.com or Mailbigfile.com to circumvent the bottlenecks. The analysis is due before the start of class.

For more detail on this project, please see Audio project guidelines under Assignments DUE on the class blog: <http://ltspring2011.blogspot.com/>

[] Identify a technology in the future that you think is going to be interesting to watch, in terms of its effects on the development of communication, including its intersection with language, texts, technology, and humanity. Send a short description and a link to a resource on that technology via Twitter, and CC that to brett.oppegaard@gmail.com by 9 a.m. Wednesday, April 27, so I can post those to the class blog, and we can talk about them in class.

Have a great summer!